David Rosenberg defends employer clients against federal claims brought under Title VII, the ADEA, ADA and the FLSA, all types of state-law employment related claims, breach of employment contracts and business' related and intentional torts.

David regularly advises corporate clients in all areas of law of the workplace and he lectures frequently on how businesses can minimize their exposure to employment-related claims and disputes.

Prior to joining FordHarrison, David was a partner in the law firm of Tucker, Flyer & Lewis in Washington, DC where he represented clients against federal and state discrimination claims.

Representative Experience

- » Obtained a jury verdict from an Arlington County Circuit Court in connection with a case brought against our client, a major Ford automobile dealership in the Northern Virginia area. This case was lodged against this dealership by its former general manager and, among other things, consisted of numerous alleged breaches of written and implied contract, claims for quantum meruit, and claims based upon promissory estoppel. This former general manager was seeking to recover in excess of $15,000,000. A jury returned a defense verdict after only one hour of deliberations.
- » In a race discrimination case brought against a medical group in Annapolis, Maryland, by a former medical technician, he achieved a successful result before the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in Baltimore, Maryland.
- » In a case brought before the U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland he filed a successful dispositive Motion to Dismiss in connection with a suit brought by a tenant against a property owner/manager on the basis of race discrimination.
