Dear Conference Attendee,

It is with great pleasure that we welcome FordHarrison and its Affirmative Action Workshop – The Fiber, The Thread, The Weave, The Web – Deconstructing Your Organizations' Affirmative Action Program – to West Palm Beach and our Convention Center Complex later this month.

FordHarrison is among the first to select our Convention Center Complex for this type of event and we are interested in ensuring that their - and your - experience in West Palm Beach is memorable.

To this end, I invite you to explore all that West Palm Beach has to offer. From our downtown waterfront along Flagler Drive to the edge of the pristine Everglades, you will find that West Palm Beach is well known for its natural beauty, its rich diversity and cultural heritage.

The recent creation of the Arts and Entertainment District ties all of our cultural assets together, making it easy to enjoy the attractions of the City. Hop onto the A&E trolley and visit the Kravis Center, the Norton Museum or Antique Row.

Enjoy the night life on Clematis Street or City Place, shop the Palm Beach Outlets, or take the family to the Palm Beach Zoo or the Science Center.

Be sure to visit our website at www.wpb.org and www.downtownwpb.com/ae-district to find out more about our City and our free events.

I have also learned that FordHarrison will host a cocktail party at 5PM on February 25, 2016, at the Convention Center's Hilton Hotel to celebrate this inaugural program. I'll be there and look forward to meeting you!

Warm Regards,

Jeri Muoio, Mayor
