

MIN K. KIM

Counsel / Los Angeles

mkim@fordharrison.com / P: 213-237-2430

Min Kim's legal practice is focused on the representation of management clients in labor and employment law matters.

Min represents employers in complex employment litigation, with a primary focus on defending wage-and-hour class actions and PAGA actions. She works closely with clients to develop clear, strategic approaches to litigation that reflect both the legal risks and the business realities at stake.

Min's experience covers the full range of employment issues, including claims of discrimination, harassment, retaliation, wrongful termination, and wage-and-hour violations. She has represented public and private employers across industries in both state and federal court, and advises on proactive compliance measures to help clients stay ahead of evolving legal requirements.

Before joining FordHarrison, Min was an associate at a large national firm where she represented employers in employment disputes and also defended business entities in commercial and general liability matters. While earning her J.D., Min externed for the Honorable Richard Fruin Jr. of the Los Angeles Superior Court and the Honorable Sandra R. Klein of the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Central District of California. She also served as a production editor for the Loyola of Los Angeles Entertainment Law Review.

Min is recognized for her thoughtful advocacy, attention to detail, and ability to provide clear, forward-thinking guidance in high-stakes matters.
