

SAVE THE DATE

2 – 5pm, Nov 1, 2018
The Beekman Hotel, NYC

Managing Employee Issues in Cybersecurity, Me Too and more: New Risks to Reputation for the Global Enterprise

An international program for General Counsel and Human Resource Executives

In this era, how your company and employees respond to prominent, politicized issues, can influence your customers and other stakeholders, including regulators. Please save the date for this unique program designed for corporate legal leaders and human resource executives.

To save your complimentary seat, simply write to events@GlobalCounselLeaders.com.

An FBI Cybercrime Agent, Fortune 250 General Counsel, and experts from United Kingdom, France, Israel, Mexico, Sweden, USA, Italy and beyond will share their insights in interactive, dynamic sessions based on recent events.

When Executives and Boards are held Accountable for Cybersecurity: Trends among regulators and media

When a cyber breach hits a company, top executives often find themselves in the spotlight for inadequate safeguarding actions. How can General Counsel and HR executives best help their executives understand and respond to these legal and reputational risks?

Navigating Employee Issues in a Politicized World: Addressing reputational risk and legal fallout

Climate change, Human trafficking, Me Too, gun control, LGBTQ rights, gender pay parity, Black Lives Matter, immigration, animal cruelty... How can Human Resources and Legal take the right steps in sensitive situations that can quickly spin into the spotlight?

RSVP — events@GlobalCounselLeaders.com

The event is organized by lus Laboris, the alliance of the world's top-ranked employment, labour and pension firms in 53 countries worldwide, in partnership with Global Counsel Leaders. CLE credit is available. Following the sessions, join your peers for a drink in the beautiful Beekman hotel.

An invitation with the full agenda is coming soon.

 Add this event to my calendar

